WEDNESDAY, MARCH 2.

Educational and Other Matters.

By W. L. HAWKINS.

We received a question on a point in grammar; it is not answered because the writer seems to be afraid to trust us with his name.

Has the Law and Order Club settled back into the old groove and continued to let things drive? Better have never "settled."

"Student" gives a problem which we hope will be correctly solved by many of the corps. Here it is: If I bought for 10 per cent. less, I should now be making 15 per cent. more, at what am I selling?

We do not propose to discuss hypercritical subjects, therefore B. B. will pardon us for not further noting his queries. Write about something you feel or of more general interest, my friend, and we will give you a prompt volume.

We visited Mr. William Foster's class in grammar, the other day, and were well pleased with all we saw. As a teacher, Mr. F. has no superior, when we consider his age and experience. We found his class bright and well up.

We are frequent visitors at the College here, and know where we speak; and we testify that the school is an exceptionally good one. As to what the young may be, we can only say that from which the best results may be as confidently looked for.

How fast the primary class at the College gets around with her lessons, I can't say; but she does, and if you will visit her room, you will see that she does, and she does.

We believe she has the best set of children we ever saw. Nearly all the little girls in her department are little sweethearts, because they are so good.

We rely the following from the Columbus Presbyterian: "The school is 'Be honest, be truthful, be just, if you will be happy or useful. The man who tampers with his character can have no respect of others or himself. There is no way by which a man can be made to succeed in this world. Just to certainly, to defend, come upon the man who practices fraud or deception in anything. If this is not true, the whole universe is built on a falsehood."

The Adelphians on the night of the 19th gave a very creditable entertainment in the hall of the College here. There was much native talent displayed on the occasion in the way of declamations and music. Mr. L. R. Barrett read a poem which was enthusiastically and warmly received. Mr. U. C. Barrett gave a comic declamation in a most entertaining way and was warmly received. Mr. Edwards, of Evansville, gave a piece on the piano which reflected great credit upon his talents. He, too, received the just tribute of being called back by the gratifying call of encore. The whole performance was an honor to the school, and, with reflection, upon the school. We hope they will favor us with another such as their laws and conveniences will permit.

We have received a communication from "Student," the one who has been so scholarly handled, was only a "catch" problem which we had determined to destroy without giving it in one column, but by some means it escaped the destruction we had meditated and crept into the column in spite of us. The three men paid $1.00 for dinner; this of course would make 45 cents apiece that they would leave. A penny is 4 of what he has, 45 x 4 equals what he had. What if he had not been in the same way, would 20 instead of 14 for the multiplier. C's amount being one-third of what he has left, is found differently. One-third of what he has left is, of course, one-fourth of what he had at first; therefore that equals what he had. We hope to hear frequently from you.

The Weight of a One Dollar Bill. In the Treasury at Washington recently the question came up as to the weight of the one dollar bill. It was found that the average weight of the one dollar bill was 1.05 grams. The weight of the one dollar bill is 1.05 grams.

As we are getting a little warmer, we are getting a little warmer. As we are getting a little warmer, we are getting a little warmer. As we are getting a little warmer, we are getting a little warmer.

Indian Gumbo to Market. (From "Telling Stories," by J. H. P. Harper's Magazine for March.) An incident of this typical journey is an interesting world, at more than one season, be a meeting with some band of Indians going to a post with their furs. Though the bulk of the business is furs, the trader's quarry in the spring and early summer, some may come at any time. The procession may be of a family or of two or more families that live together or as neighbors. The men, if there is but one group, is certainly to be stalking about, doing nothing but his gun. Then come the women, laden like pack-horses. They may have a sack packed with the furs and down like dog or two, and an extra dog may have a balanced load on his back, but the square is certain to have a square-headed burden of meat and a battered tin and a pappoose, and whatever personal property of any and every sort she and her little ones have. Children who can walk have to do so, but it sometimes happens that a baby a year and a half or two years old is on her back, with a new-born infant in her left hand, and a bagged and tied linen Bologna sausage, underneath the load on the sled. A more tedious and maddening task than a hand of these papered horses, it would be difficult to imagine. On the other hand they will have horses dragging travois, women and children loaded with impedimenta, a soft or two running loose, a horse man riding four, straggling on a plenty, babies in arms, babies abandoned, and the whole battalion proceeding at its exposed points of contact to the point of contact.

Jefferson County Roads—A Suggestion.

(From James.) To pay the roads, for all the work done on the roads, an annual tax of ten cents on the hundred dollars is levied and collected by the sheriff when he collects the taxes. The amount of money collected to work the roads is divided by the number of roads, and each district is required to draw one share to pay the work done on the roads. This way of dividing the money is not fair, because the districts that are the richest and nearest to Louisville pay more than double as much tax as some of the poorest districts. In fact, the district in law in some more than a thousand dollars every year for the maintenance of the roads, while the poorest districts pay only a few dollars.
